Reclamation planning

Aquatic complex seen for quarries

The Valley's famed quarry pits should be embraced by 2,255 acres of lakes in the year 2030 that form an advanced "water management" system for flood control and water storage.

And the bill for that sophisticated system should fall to Zone 7, according to a long - awaited report mapping out reclamation plans for the area.

The report, prepared by engineers working for the Valley's "big four" sand and gravel excavators, calls for nine lakes ringing the land between Pleasanton and Livermore after mining has stopped in 2030.

The "chain of lakes" would ring 1,325 "regenerated" acres, the bulk of which would be used for agriculture and recreation.

The project's key is a hydraulically run water management system that would store and circulate water in the nine lakes. The lakes would connect the del Valle, Mocho and Las Positas arroyos.

The system could take up the slack created as the state uses more storage in the Del Valley reservoir. Both surface runoff and South Bay Aqueduct water could be held in the lakes.

"Zone 7 ... could construct, maintain and operate the diversion works and pipes, valves and gates hydraulically connecting the 'chain of lakes,' " and develop a complete "water management plan." No cost estimates are given for construction or operation of the system.

But those costs would be offset in part by reductions in flood channel expenses, according to the report.

Marrying surface runoff and aqueduct water with the Valley's existing groundwater supply also would raise water quality, the report contends. Some 100,000 acre - feet of water could be stored in the lakes.

Environ, the San Leandro engineers contracted by Kaiser, Rhodes and Jamieson, Cal Rock and Lone Star, recommends their plan be adopted as the county's official "specific plan" for the area after public exposure and input.

They also want the county's and Cities of Livermore's and Pleasan-

New park funds pose problems

It's going to take a lot of cooperation if Alameda County public agencies are to qualify this year for $4 million in Prop. 2 park, recreation and historical preservation funds.

County agencies have until March 15 to agree on a plan for dividing up the funding. The Board of Supervisors is supposed to come up with a proposed plan next month. Their proposal must be backed by at least 50 per cent of the county's 20 eligible sponsoring agencies (cities or park and recreation districts) before the state will release the money for the 1977 - 78 fiscal year.

"What's going to be fun is getting those priorities set up," observed Bruce Fry, county assistant planning director, after listening to a dozen Valley representatives push for several different plans at a Thursday night hearing in Shannon Community Center, Dublin.

The historical preservation groups wanted to be put in a separate category from local park and rec agencies. The East Bay Regional Park District wanted one - quarter of the pie for some big development projects. Local park and rec people wanted the money divided on a per - capita basis.

Listening attentively were members of the Alameda County Parks Advisory Commission, temporarily chaired by Commissioner Ron Harris of Pleasanton.

The commission is due to hold hearings in Hayward and Oakland this week, then come up with a plan to present to the Board of Supervisors by Feb. 1.

If the Supervisors go along with the proposed plan, it will give the 20 agencies involved just one or two meetings to decide whether they approve of the plan. At least 10 will have to give their approval before March 15 in order for the county's application to get to Sacramento by deadline.

And those 10 or more must represent at least half the county's total population, so it's essential that big cities such as Oakland, Berkeley or

Church move: Final vote set Tuesday

PLEASANTON — There are four different ways local Presbyterians can get a new building or buildings for the price of moving their 100 year old church, Lew Helgeson believes.

Helgeson is in one of two camps which will present their ideas to the church membership at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the church sanctuary. Members will vote then on the question of whether or not to move the 100 year old church.

Advocates of moving the church want to move it to the church's Mirador Drive site and expand the building a bit.

They feel this will take care of the seating problem and still give the membership the benefit of worshiping in the 100 old edifice.

A majority of the congregation seemed set on this corse for months, but balked when bids for moving the church came in at double the expected cost of $240,000.

Helgeson told The Times Friday that there are four options which the congregation can ponder if it wants to keep the church on Neal Street and build new structures on Mirador. One option is to build a multipurpose room as large as 4,800 square feet. It would cost $240,000 or so, the amount already in the building fund earmarked for moving the church.

A variation of that is to take the same $240,000 and build classrooms covering 4,400 square feet. Another plan is to build up to 9,500 square feet of multipurpose room and kitchen. This building could be used either for assemblies or classes and would cost approximately $500,000.

The fourth alternative is to build a sanctuary totaling 7,350 square feet, seating 400 in the main part of the church and another 100 overflow seats in the narthex. This fourth option is the least likely in Helgeson's opinion, but the choice is up to the congregation.

The cost estimates don't include the $50,000 to $70,000 needed to refurbish the old church, but Helgeson feels five or six years of funding from the church's operating budget could cover that.

Jaycees name John Amaral top citizen

PLEASANTON — "I don't believe it," were John Amaral's first words when it was announced that he was winner of the Pleasanton Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award Saturday at the Pleasanton Hotel. Amaral accepted a silver champagne urn from Assemblyman Floyd Mori with tears in his eyes and seemed momentarily overwhelmed by the affectionate applause that greeted him.

Nominated by the Soroptimist Club, Amaral was among the three finalists selected from nominations made by the community. The two runners up for the award were Frank Damerval and Harry Miller, Jr.

The awards luncheon, sponsored by Aric and Suzette Glanville of Glanville's Fine Jewelry and Gifts, is an annual Jaycee event honoring a Pleasanton resident who has contributed significantly to his profession, his community, the state or nation in recent years.

John and Ruth Amaral will enjoy an expense paid weekend at Lake Tahoe, courtesy of Glanville's Jewelry.

VALLEY NEWS BRIEFS

Lab explosion

A gas boiler exploded in the chemistry building of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory early Friday, rattling windows in downtown Livermore but causing no injuries and only minor damage.

A Lab spokesman said workers attempting to light the boiler, which supplies heat to the chemistry building, apparently touched off the explosion about 7:30 Friday morning.

Radioactive materials stored in the building were not involved and pose no danger of leakage as a result of the explosion, the spokesman said.

Activities of workers in the building were not affected. The insulated utility room apparently limited the extent of damage, but the spokesman said there "may have been substantial damage to the boiler."

Traffic claims filed

Two claims have been filed against the City of Pleasanton in traffic accidents, one totaling more than $1.1 million, the other $22,940.

The $1.1 million claim has been filed on behalf of Edward Peterson, Jr., of Dublin who was riding in a car involved in an accident where Division Street becomes St. Mary Street. The claim accuses the city of being negligent by maintaining a dangerous curve where Division joins St. Mary Street.

In the other claim, 11 year old Charles Boucher wants $22,940 in damages sustained after he fell from his bicycle when a wheel allegedly was hooked by a city storm grate opening.

The city council will review the claims tomorrow night and is expected to deny them and refer them to City Attorney Ken Scheidig.

Las Positas span eyed

Pleasanton City Council will make another bid tomorrow night to persuade the state highway department to perform design engineering studies for the proposed Las Positas overcossing.

The staff has drafted a letter for Mayor Robert Philcox to sign and send to the highway department's district director of transportation.

The city realizes the state traditionally has not done design skeches for unfunded projects, but with the city putting away funds toward trying to finance some form of overcrossing, the council hopes the state will hear the plea and grant it.

Back to work

The Congress of Valley Agencies, a consortium of the Valley's municipal bodies, will hold its first meeting in some four months next week.

Agenda discussions include the senior citizens' "Gold Card" program, COVA's by-laws and a report from the group's study committee chairmen.

COVA chairman Ken Mercer of Pleasanton has members working on reports dealing with bicycle and equestrian trails, consolidation of various city services, and a host of other topics.

COVA's steering committee will meet at 8 p.m., Feb. 10, in the conference room of Valley Community Services District in Dublin.

The committee is composed of representatives from VCSD, Zone 7 of the county flood control and water conservation district, and the Cities of Pleasanton and Livermore.

Meet privately

The Murray School District Board of Trustees will meet in closed session Monday night to interview consultants, one of whom will be hired to direct the search for a new superintendent.

Board members decided previously to place the recruitment process in the hands of a consultant, to be paid an unspecified fee, who would search the state for qualified applicants.

The district has the goal of hiring a new superintendent to replace Dr. Donald Williams, now on sick leave, before July 1. Williams' request for indefinite sick leave was accepted by the board early this month.

Monday's meeting is set for 8 p.m. at the district offices on Brighton in Dublin.

VM Hospital directors run unopposed

LIVERMORE — Ballots have been mailed to the 4,000 members of the Valley Memorial Hospital Association for the board of directors election.

In contrast to last year, when there was competition for two of the three seats, this year's contest features three candidates running unopposed for their three - year terms on the nine - member board.

Nominees are Joseph Sladky, incumbent, of Livermore; Jack Bras, incumbent, of Pleasanton; and Edwin C. Rundstrom, director - at - large.

Ballots must be returned by Feb. 17 when the annual meeting will be held in the hospital cafeteria.

Sladky has been a member of the board since 1971. Manager of the Hexcel Livermore plant, he has served on the boards of the Livermore Elementary and Unified School Districts. He is a graduate of the University of Minnesota with a degree in mechanical engineering. A member of the Livermore Rotary Club, he lives with his wife in Livermore.

Jack Bras has been on the hospital board since 1968 and is a graduate of the University of California, Berkeley. He has had an architectural firm in Pleasanton for 12 years. He is a past president of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce and the Pleasanton Rotary Club. He lives with his wife and three children in Pleasanton.

Rundstrom, a candidate for director - at - large, served on the hospital board from 1965 to 1969.

He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of California, Berkeley. After a career of 31 years in teaching and administration, he retired as superintendent of the Livermore Unified School District in 1973.

He is past president of the Livermore Rotary Club and past chairman of the Livermore Planning Commission. A member of the Alameda County Resource Conservation District board of directors, he and his wife Thelma live in Livermore.

'Footsteps in the night'

Bay Area search launched for ghosts

Mark Turck is a ghost hunter.

Currently on a search for "famous San Francisco ghosts," the 27-year old Fresno resident says most of the ghosts he contacts are reached by going to places said to be haunted and hypnotizing a subject. The hypnotize subject then acts as a go-between.

While the thought of apparitions and "footsteps in the night" may be the basis for jokes by some, Turck is quite serious in his pursuit of ghostly phenomena.

Serious to the point of organizing the International Society for the Investigation of Ghosts. Members have access to the files of the International Ghost Registry and receive a subscription to FOG — "Friends of Ghosts."

Louise Schaefer, editor of FOG, says "reports of ghosts and other psychic events have been coming in from all over the country, and we are truly amazed and gratified at the response. We have already begun actively investigating some of the reports. We have been working on an especially baffling case in San Francisco."

Turck's research in San Francisco is part of material he is gathering for that book on "famous ghosts."

As director of the society he keeps records of claimed ghost sightings, and investigates hauntings and other ghostly phenomena.

Holder of a master's degree in theater from Fresno State, Turck's society for investigating ghosts is based at the Salinas home of Ms. Schaefer. She is a stuffed doll manufacturer who is proprietess of the society's International Ghost Registry and editor of the bimonthly newsletter FOG.

Turck's gallavanting after ghosts has brought him media exposure from Jim Dunbar on the ABC-TV "A.M. San Francisco" show, a story by United Press International, radio interviews and a technical consultant's position for a five-part series on ghosts of San Francisco, run as a special news feature by a San Francisco television station.

He became interested in the psychic world as a small child. Being the first child, Mark's father made him the subject of certain psychic experiments when he was old enough to speak.

When the two of them were busily engaged in some other task, and Mark was in a position where he couldn't directly see his father speaking, his father would think of a question.

Mark says he learned to hear the question telepathicly, as clearly as if it were physically spoken, and answer it out loud.

Consequently, he learned to develop telepathic abilities without realizing it was anything unusual or extraordinary.

When he was old enough to go to school, however, Mark found out that he was the only child in the class who could hear the teacher's unspoken thoughts, and was considered quite peculiar when he began answering questions that hadn't even been asked yet!

His research of "famous San Francisco ghosts" has produced many intriguing finds.

Turck describes the "Monrow House of Howling Demons," scene of perhaps the strangest poltergeist phenomena of the period — 1856. The home, owned by a "British scoundrel" known as Col. J.P. Monrow, was situated on a slope of Russian Hill.

His investigations produced substantiated accounts of objects suddenly and mysteriously flying across a room, of ghostly howls and footsteps.

Asked to describe a more contemporary "ghost manor," Turck tells of an old Victorian structure on 16th Street in San Francisco that was renovated and made into apartments.

Turck says that when a Joseph Harker moved into the building he felt an aura of oppressiveness and hostility.

He immediately began to hear horrible - sounding screams and wailing and unexplained thumps. Thinking he might be going mad, Harker checked with his neighbors who verified the ghostly goings-on.

At one point Harker, as recounted by Turck, saw an "older woman" ghost walking down the hallway. Objects began to fly around the room, and the door to his lodgings started to bowe inward.

Harker called Psychic Magazine about the strange phenomena and the magazine notified Turck. He and Ms. Schaefer went to investigate. As they sat in the room that night, the door knob began to turn by itself. They went to the door but saw no one. Later that night they heard a voice yelling, "Get out of here." Harker had also claimed he heard shouts.

Believing it could be a ghost, Turck, the next morning, put his associate under hypnosis. Through the hypnosis, Turck and Ms. Schaefer were able to establish that the ghost was that of the woman, the one who supposedly had been yelling.

The former case, incidentally, concerning the "House of Howling Demons," was located at the corner of Chestnut and Larkin. The pseudonym was popularized by a famed San Francisco woman of yesteryear, Lola Montes. The property now has an apartment house that was built in the 1930s.

While working on his book, Turck teaches extension courses in extra sensory perception and lectures frequently in the central and northern California areas.

Livermore to appeal sewer ban

LIVERMORE — City Council voted in executive session Thursday to appeal the regional water quality control board's cease and desist order banning new sewer hookups to the state board.

The vote was split 3-2, with Mayor Helen Tirsell and Councilman Marshall Kamena objecting that the move would be meaningless.

The majority felt it was a procedure which should be followed, said Tirsell, since it is permissable by law.

"They felt we shouldn't let politics persuade our decision," she told The Times.

The hookup ban has kept many development plans in limbo for several weeks, with no clear cut solution in the wings.

Roses symbolize life

Three thousand handmade red roses symbolizing the 3 million babies who have been aborted since the U.S. Supreme Court decision in 1973, will be distributed throughout the valley by women from right-to-life organizations this week. About 60 representatives from the valley will also make the trip to Sacramento to protest that decision in a march Saturday, the anniversary of the court ruling. Six hundred marched in a similar protest last year at the California capitol, and 65,000 are expected to march on the Capitol in Washington, D.C. Wearing red roses in support of life are Connie Henry with son Ryan, Irvinia Bunting, Carren Linn, Sue Krejcha and Marsh Zahn with daughter Heather.

Livermore considers holding tank permits

LIVERMORE — When the question of holding tanks comes before city council Monday, City Attorney Gary Reiners will suggest any plan be implemented by resolution rather than ordinance.

The question of holding tanks was brought up by Councilman John Staley two weeks ago, when it was noted that Livermore could lose some prospective industrial developers who feared costly delays imposed by a sewer hookup ban.

Reiners will present to council a draft resolution to establish a policy governing the use of holding tanks here, limiting the use of the tanks to one - year periods, "with renewal not a right."

He recommended against use of an ordinance to permit the tanks, because, while both have the force of law, a resolution would have "ease of modification and repeal."

His resolution would provide a monopoly for a single disposal company for transportation of the effluent.

"This could conceivably provide for greater control over the disposal of the effluent and minimize problems with it," he said.

Standards for construction and siting of the tanks would be developed by the director of public works, according to Reiner's resolution.

Only commercial and industrial uses would be allowed for the tanks.

A contract between the city and any commercial or industrial developer would require the developer to connect to the city's sewer system within 60 days notice.

In other business, the council will:

— consider traffic signalization at South Livermore Avenue and Fourth Street.

— consider approving proposed AC Transit bus shelter construction and locations, including the requisite encroachment permits.

— consider the design review committee's report on a city identification sign along I-580, near the airport and other locations.

Municipal court action listed

LIVERMORE — A Concord man pleaded not guilty in municipal court here Wednesday to felony hit and run, drunk driving charges stemming from an accident last week that brought injuries to a Livermore teenager in his car.

Kerry Lane Woods, 27, was ordered to appear Feb. 17 for a pretrial hearing in the case.

Police reports indicated Woods and four other men were allegedly drinking beer in his pickup truck, parked on Arroyo Road prior to the accident. The truck reportedly struck a telephone pole, causing injuries to Michael H. Mustain, 17, 440 No. K St., Livermore.

The felony hit and run charges were placed because Woods reportedly neglected to report the accident.

In other court action:

— Terry Gene Tallman, 21, of 453 Rose Ave., Pleasanton, was scheduled for a March 2 preliminary hearing on charges he allegedly stole a green plaid woman's coat from Mervyn's Department Store in Dublin Oct. 24.

— Glen Arthur Weeks, 39, of 1214 Aaron St., Livermore, was scheduled for a Jan. 28 court appearance to set a preliminary hearing date on charges his alleged drunk driving caused an accident Dec. 5 in the P Street Safeway parking lot and causing injury to four others.

Police reports indicate he allegedly turned his vehicle in front of a car driven by Diane Tuft, 5107 Norma Way, Livermore. Tuft and her passengers, Thomas Banuelos, Patricia French and Patricia Cooper, were taken to Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor cuts, contusions and abrasions.

— Three inmates of Santa Rita prison were sent to Superior Court after their alleged Dec. 19 escape.

Carl Fernandez and John Wyman were ordered to appear Jan. 28, Paul V. Garlock was scheduled for a superior court appearance this week.

— Ouida May Hubbard, 29, of Oakland, an inmate at the same prison, was bound over to superior court after a preliminary hearing Wednesday on charges of possessing heroin in her cell.

Pleasanton to review zoning plan

PLEASANTON — The city council will be asked tomorrow night to use its influence with Alameda County to stop a proposed seven acre rezoning near Stanley Boulevard.

Stanley Boulevard resident Sandy Sinclair will make the request because she thinks that neighbor Joseph Madden should not be allowed to change the agricultural and residential zoning on his property to a commercial use.

Madden wants to build a public storage facility on the triangular shaped parcel near the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific railroad tracks, but Sinclair is afraid once the parcel has commercial zoning, some future owner of the piece would put a less desirable use there.

Development of the Del Valle Parkway along Stanley Boulevard is many years away and no more commercial should be allowed in the area until that street develops, she thinks.

Sinclair is afraid the neighborhood lacks political clout because there are only a few residents in the vicinity. But the old segment of Stanley Boulevard is one of the city's most picturesque areas and she hopes the city council will go to bat for her and her neighbors.

Madden's application will come before the Alameda County planning commission next Monday, Jan. 31.

Sinclair emphasized that Madden is a good neighbor and even notified residents a month ago of his intentions, but the rezoning of the land to commercial bothers her.

Lake network envisioned

ton's general plans amended to conform with the quarry area plan. Current county quarry ordinances also should be modified to match the state's Surface Mining and Reclamation Act.

But the engineers also recognize the plan's need to reflect "changing conditions at the quarries" over the next 53 years and call for continual updates.

The plan warns of a high ground water level that "will severely hinder the quarry operations and could prevent implementation of this plan."

Steep slopes in the nine lakes would hinder their use as recreational areas, the report concedes, but the East Bay Regional Parks District wants to expand the Shadow Cliffs park area south of Stanley Boulevard.

Engineers suggest future modifications to allow for recreational use of the lakes.

Old quarry pits would face five fates: an earth fill that would support industrial, commercial or urban development; settling ponds for agriculture; capped settling ponds for limited industrial use and open space; and the lakes.

Of the 3,800 acres of quarry lands, 475 would be undisturbed.

The Arroyo Mocho would have to be aligned. Costs would be born through a "reimbursement program for construction of major flood control facilities." Zone 7 and the county board of supervisors agreed to the program in 1966, according to Environ.

The plan was presented to the Valley's Sand and Gravel Study Committee at a luncheon last Friday.

Representatives from both cities, Zone 7, all four gravel firms and valley supervisorial representative Valerie Raymond were present.

The plan reportedly was received favorably.

Park funding poses problem

The $4 million is coming to the county from the 1976 Recreation Bond Act approved by voters in November. The money may be used for park, recreation and historical purposes such as acquisition and development of land for park and recreation uses, building of recreation centers, purchase and restoration of historical buildings.

As is their custom, the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD) sent a delegation to repeat their request for per - capita division of the money. If the funds are handed out strictly on a population basis, LARPD would receive $224,580 which would be largely spent on development of neighborhood parks.

The district's chairperson, Lois Ellsaesser noted, "Alameda County had the second highest vote for Prop. 2 and we very actively campaigned for it ... We also perform the functions of the regional parks in our area."

Ed LeRoy of the Livermore Jaycees added his support to LARPD's stand, noting his club was trying to develop a park on Livermore's northside but had only $28,000 to improve a 13 - acre piece of land.

Taking the opposite tack, former Valley Community Services director Tom Schweser, now a member of an East Bay Regional Park District advisory board, put in a word for EBRPD's $1 million request.

"They've had funds for acquisition," Schweser said, "but funds for development are short ... Many projects are planned and ready to go."

He said expansion of the entrance to Sunol Regional Park, building a trail from Niles Creek to Sunol, developing the Alameda Creek Quarries recreation area in Fremont, and five other projects would benefit residents of the entire county.

Historical preservationists Janet Newton of the Livermore Heritage Guild and Marie Cronin and Judy Earl of the Dublin Historical Preservation Association criticized the planning department for failing to notify them of the hearing.

Newton described the Heritage Guild's need for $9,900 to continue restoration of the one - room May School north of Livermore. Cronin said DHPA's historical center project in Dublin should be considered a county - wide, not local, project.

Representing the City of Pleasanton, Don Sooby plumped for straight per - capita distribution of the money (which would give Pleasanton $148,000) because "the success of the bond issue is largely attributable to the local projects around the state" (from the 1974 bond money.)

Travels to Peru. . .

By JEAN McKENNA

A fabulous two-week excursion which took her through the deserts, mountain jungles, city tenements and ancient ruins of Peru has provided Karen Wilson with a year's worth of material for extemporaneous discourse, as well as a lifetime of memories.

Karen, a zesty and articulate real estate salesperson, is the new president of the Livermore - Amador Valley Toastmistress Club. The purpose of the club is to give members practice in public speaking, and Karen hopes to use her finely - honed communication skills in a program on her Peruvian travels for valley clubs and classrooms.

She stood on the eerie, desert-like Nazca Plains and examined the mysterious lines and figures scraped on its surface with expert Maria Reiche, a mathematician who has spent 30 years trying to discover how some ancient civilization created the design with such precision. Karen had read the bestseller, "Chariot of the Gods," which postulated that the marks formed a landing strip for outer-space craft. After seeing the plains for herself, she tends to favor Reiche's theory that the strange markings are an astrological calendar made by men.

Karen is an avid reader, and admits that she managed to devour five books while traveling.

The independent Karen left her two daughters in the care of her ex-husband for the holidays, and departed for Peru on Christmas Eve. Traveling alone, she found herself celebrating the arrival of a new year along the banks of an Amazon River tributary, dancing to Indian bongo drums and drinking knaka-knaka (an alcoholic drink made of chocolate). In the dry, mountainous city of Cusco, she traded an umbrella for reproductions of pre-Incan pottery, and in the rain forest she traded for an Indian blow-gun.

Her tour group came upon the shocking sight of Indian children swimming without clothes in a jungle river infested with deadly pirahnas! (They don't feed during daylight hours but would devour humans by night.)

"I found the country wildly fascinating," she exclaims. "It has more geographical variety than any small spot in the world." Attracted to Peru because of her interest in Incan history, she visited the famed Machu Picchu ruins in the jungle on an unusual, sunny day. Others who have seen the ruins shrouded in fog have felt Machu Picchu to be a fortress, but she believes it may have been an ancient resort.

The sight of the millions of people who inhabit the slums of Lima brought many of the tour group to tears, says Karen. She is convinced that the rigors of travel to such places as Peru would overwhelm a child, so she makes the trips of her dreams alone, and takes her own children camping in the mountains closer to home.

"I think my children are more mentally healthy because I encourage them to be independent of me," she explains. "And I believe that it's important to do those things I really want to do TODAY." She is already planning a trip next year to Cairo, Egypt, via Paris and Athens.

Karen's success in real estate with Vintage Realty of Livermore has enabled her to travel — and to buy a house in Pleasanton.

"My own house is the worst real estate buy in the world, and I love it!" she declares. Karen is doing a complete redecorating and some remodeling of the house with help from a decorator. The contract work is done by contacts she has made through her business. "Entertaining friends is really my thing, and I can't wait to show them the house."

Karen thrives on contact with people and enjoys real estate as an opportunity to serve others. "Sometimes it takes every ounce of professional skill to get some people into a house, due to rising prices today." She finds the educational aspects of her job cause her to draw on several years, previous experience as a teacher in grammar and high schools.

"With real estate, as with teaching, I'm dealing with personalities," Karen explains. "I must be able to understand what people are really trying to say, behind what they actually tell me." A common personality she meets in Livermore is the client who plays the part of the real estate expert.

"Instead of being put off by his attempt to prove he knows it all, I commend him for taking the trouble to try and understand the subject. When he knows I respect his intelligence, he'll relax and admit that he's really confused and in need of advice. We're off to a good start when he can trust me."

Another challenge that Karen faces daily is that of speaking extemporaneously to clients who ask her advice. The Toastmistress Club helps her develop the ability to think on her feet and to admit honestly she doesn't have an answer without appearing foolish. Karen also hopes to polish her public address.

The club has a built-in system for evaluating members' performance. At meetings twice a month, everyone takes a turn as "evaluator," and cultivates the ability to criticize constructively and kindly.

"The group is very supportive, since we're all there to learn," Karen says. "If there's one quality we all share, regardless of our differences in professions and ages, it's a love of people and feistiness."

Karen will be installed at a luncheon at the Red Baron steakhouse Wednesday, Jan. 26 at noon. Guest speaker will be Vera Allen, of Vera Allen Publishing, who will reveal the secret of her success as a businesswoman. Other officers to be honored are Betty Burgle, vice-president; Virginia McMillen, secretary; and Peggy Dorward, treasurer.

The club meets the second and fourth Thursdays of each month from 11 a.m. to 12:30 at the Livermore Library. For information contact Ms. Dorward at 447-6553.

Karen Wilson, a real estate salesperson from Livermore, spent New Year's Eve in the Amazon jungle. She'll address the Toastmistress Club on the subject as its new president.

Eyes have it

Bay Area Lions Clubs serve as the eyes of the community, promoting programs to assist those with vision impairments.

Noteworthy in this area has been Lions Noteworthy in this area have been campaigns to provide glasses for folks who can't afford them, and sponsorship of a Beep Baseball team for blind youngsters.

Those efforts reflect the true value of community service organizations.

But now the Lions have a problem. Their low vision clinic in Oakland, a specialty center to aid those who can't be helped by regular spectacles, needs patients.

There are many with special vision problems, say the Lions, especially among the elderly, who don't avail themselves of treatment. They instead resign themselves to poor sight.

According to the Lions, 80 per cent of those who attend the clinic experience significant improvement in their visual performance.

It's just that not enough people attend.

The Lions want their message spead to church groups, service groups, and organizations of the elderly. The low vision clinic is there to use. A wide range of techniques are available to aid sight.

If your vision is bad, or if you know someone with visual problems, contact the Lions Club in your community. They'll help.

A growth issue

More dry weather — that's what the California Department of Water Resources was predicting late last week while homeowners watched their lawns turn to hay and farmers pleaded for emergency relief from the federal government.

Drought is becoming serious business. Doomsdayers are saying we're in for more than a decade of dry bones weather.

Water suppliers tell us there's enough to go around in the Valley in the near future. If the purveyors of woe are correct, however, shortages may crop up within a few years.

Perhaps now is the time for conservation measures — at least cursory ones.

Initial water saving steps usually aim at uses considered non-essential — washing the car, for example, or watering the dichondra.

Homeowners will argue, though, that care for their backyard greenery is not a trifling matter. Many invest more in landscaping than they do the family car. To them, thousands of dollars worth of lawn, plants and trees are essential.

The problem is balancing yard-care needs against the greater water dependence of a community.

To that purpose the University of California Cooperative Extension, along with 13 landscape and nurseryman associations, will devote attention at their sixth Environmental Hort Conference Fed. 9 at the San Jose Hyatt House.

The men who make a living on the stuff we grow, will discuss ways to conserve water in the garden. Which plants survive best in low rainfall, how little irrigation is needed — these are topics which help make conservation less painful.

By next month, the state estimates more than 40 counties in California will have filed for drought aid. That's how serious the situation is.

Registration for the conference begins at 8:30 a.m. Feb. 9 at a cost of $10. Pre-registration for $8 can be made by check to Environmental Hort Conference, P.O. Box 3202, San Jose, 95156, before Feb. 2.

It could save your lawn.

Church concern

Editor, The Times:

We feel it is very important that people of Pleasanton know that the members of the Presbyterian Church are truly concerned about their beautiful 100 year old sanctuary. Just where the church will be restored and preserved is the question for this coming Tuesday night. We are hoping that over 300 members will be present to mark the historic occasion of setting the stage for the next 100 years.

We have estimated that it will take from 50 to 70 thousand dollars to restore the old sanctuary, by putting in fire sprinklers, providing better exists, and checking out the wiring. Over the years much of the exterior wood has become broken, been painted too many times, or has simply rotted away. Our sanctuary has served the community well, so it is time for us to reciprocate. We have received many pledges for our building program from old and new friends who aren't even members ... they simply want to see a part of their heritage preserved, whether it be on Neal Street or up on a hill at Mirador Drive.

Sometimes progress is measured in strange ways. To some it means a fast growing congregation ... to others it means having more buildings ... or to have things very modern ... while others think of progress in terms of moderation.

One might say of us Presbyterians ... why would they spend thousands of dollars to fix up an old sanctuary ... or why move two old buildings and spend all that money ... it doesn't make sense. Well, we have a fondness for the buildings and the people in them, and for memories that have helped form some of Pleasanton's traditions. We have had hundreds of facts and figures to compare in our decision making. During this last week we learned that the city will be taking away some five parking spaces in front of our church because of a new traffic light. It wasn't too long ago we lost three parking spaces because of a new bus stop. With the increased noise of two major streets that quaint, folksy Pleasanton atmosphere is quickly fading.

Being a Presbyterian is a privilege since we vote our own immediate destinies by majority rule ... which means we must be flexible. When we sit down to vote we will be confronted with A) a contractural agreement with a set maximum to move our buildings or B) or face up to a phased construction scheme with some beautiful modern buildings for an undertermined cost over and undertermined time span.

We would like to welcome other Pleasantonites to visit our beautiful sanctuary before and after our restoration. We are about to start the preparations for our 101st birthday in October. If you would like to be a part of a great group ... come on over ... we are trying to make room for a few more friends.

The week in retrospect

Harry S—BS?

Poetic license was mutilated beyond recognition on television last Thursday night.

My staunch Republican heart compels me to answer in part the two-hour presentation of "Give 'Em Hell, Harry," a brilliantly conceived and portrayed staging of excerpts from the life of Harry S Truman, as done by James Whitemore.

The prime-time presentation is actually videotape of Whitemore's one-man show that gained rave reviews throughout the country a year or two ago.

However, like many film, video or stage productions, real-life occurrences are embellished, distorted or not put in context and what results is a less than honest or damaging (to the persons and or institutions involved) scenario.

If one didn't know better, you'd swear that Harry S Truman must have been the most ding - busted one - liner comedian since the hey day of Henny Youngman and Bob Hope.

From what I remember of good ol' Harry, he indeed was a salty and straightforward senator and President.

What I don't remember ever hearing or seeing much of were the out'n out slurs, libel, facedowns and other bravado-forms credited to the man from Independence.

The Republicans, naturally, and all those other crooked, racist, conservative and military madmen really got THEIRS from ol' Harry as portrayed by Whitemore. Whether it was all, "substantially" or mostly-not true seems of little consequence.

"Give 'Em Hell, Harry" was and is a comedy-bravado rally for all those who really believe Truman represented the "little man," was totally incorruptible, and was above realizing that SOME of the actions of MacArthur, McCarthy, Taft, Eisenhower and Congressional members were necessary.

Zeroing in on the pompous, the priviledged and powerful, as defined by the supposed "little guy," is a time-honored American sport.

Until the time comes when the line between "sport" and slur becomes blurred.

Did Mr. Truman actually say and/or mean all that the writers for Whitemore produced?

Is "Give 'Em Hell, Harry" rooted in a combination of fiction and fact?

Only those who care to find out will ever know.

In the mean time, the tube entertains and enthralls millions of Americans, many of whom are too young to know if the dramatization of Harry S is mostly fact or mostly fiction.

But, stand fast, for next week the tube will bring us "The Young John F. Kennedy."

Is there a possibility we might even see "Young Ike" or "All-American in the White House: Gerald R. Ford" on the tube some day!

Letters to the Times

Next move

Editor, The Times:

"To move the church or not" ... a question to decide. To stay with what we've got, (the future we will hide)! Or force ourselves to grow and practice what we preach ... Expand with what we know, extend our present reach.

Because we like the now, the move is hard to make. We argue over how, dispute for our own sake. We say it can't be done in ways to please use all ... that we must think as one, young or old — tall or small.

It has been said "Don't move!"; it cannot be God's will. That obstacles just prove ... don't go — let's wait "until"! I don't accept such thought, that God has simple ways. My life, to me, has taught God's will takes years, not days.

There was a time for me, a wheelchair seemed my fate. If no one heard my plea, my faith could turn to hate. But months and years of sweat, some agony and prayer permits me now to get around most anywhere.

When needs you want to fill, don't quit when times get tough! Pursue your goal until, for you, it's met enough! Let's move the church and share fulfillment of our dreams. One home, not here and there, for me — God's will — it seems.

Conserve water

Editor, The Times:
Suggestion:

Because of the inevitable water shortage and the request that people voluntarily conserve water, why don't the newspaper (times) and the others help with a psychological ploy? On the front page of EACH Daily paper print "Conserve Water." It should get people to think about the problem and then do something about it.

No growth excuse

Editor, The Times:

I have no doubt long since been dubbed a "developer sympathesizer" due to my reluctant refusal to support no-growth policies; reluctant because I too hate to see this valley lose what little rural and smalltown qualities it has left, but refusal none the less, because I see no argument by which present residents can justify keeping newcomers out. None, that is, other than selfish interest. If the law can be used to support the selfish interest of one group today it can be used to support another's tomorrow. Specifically, air pollution does not provide such an argument unless you can justify no-growth on the basis of aesthetics. And if aesthetic is a valid argument for keeping newcomers out there is no need to appeal to air pollution.

But now we have an opportunity to have the best of both worlds, we can enjoy the current and short-lived advantages of no-growth while Big Brother, in the form of the Regional Water Quality Control Board, defends the passes for us. And as the diastrous effects of no-growth immerge they can all be blamed on Big Brother!

What a beautiful way for our local officials to transfer all their warts and horns to Big Brother and to brighten up their own halos. Let's not do anything hasty to upset this apple cart.

To The Times:
An open letter to Barbara Stears:

We must respond immediately to your badly misinformed letter to the editor concerning E.C.E. According to your letter: — you believe that E.C.E. provides no guidance for the children; — you believe that E.C.E. is a reading program designed to narrow the gap between the middle class and the disadvantaged; — you believe that E.C.E. pumps money into coordinators, secretaries, and unpaid volunteers. For your information:

E.C.E. is a unique program because it is for the benefit of all K-3 children, not just the disadvantaged;

E.C.E. covers all instructional areas, not just reading;

E.C.E. does not pump money into bureaucracy. With the help of E.C.E. money, the adult/pupil ratio is reduced to 1/10. How can you say there is less guidance for the children? How can you label E.C.E. an unstructured approach to education?

E.C.E. is an attempt to individualize in order to meet each child's needs. E.C.E. children are not left to drift at their own pace but are guided at their individual level, challenged, encouraged and stimulated.

It is appalling to see such ignorance in a school board candidate. We strongly urge that you study the programs that you choose to attack.

round the town

It's that time of year again.

Tensions are high. News persons who have worked elbow to elbow in high professional demeanor for the past year will soon be snarling and bickering like a bunch of wildcats.

We have this company policy, sort of. The Vacation Schedule is posted in January; those most senior in the service get to choose their weeks first, and so on down the line. On paper, it works fine; in practice it is a blessed mess.

I am always amazed, in January, to learn how many "absolutely essential" family gatherings are already scheduled for the last two weeks of June. I am thinking of writing our new president to suggest that he lengthen June to a 40- week month; let the other eleven months fend for themselves. Vacation wise.

Being the most senior thing on the premises, I get to mark my vacation schedule first. Which is what I am supposed to be doing right now. I am staring at that calendar ... 52 unclaimed weeks stretched before me. Take your choice.

And I can't move. Can't decide on a single blessed week.

"I thought we might visit your brothers in Vancouver this year," the lady of the house suggests. "Some time when the weather up there is nice."

The weather in Vancouver is nice from about June 15 through August 28, allowing for intermittent summer showers, unscheduled hailstorms and the terrible mid - July fogs.

I can think of no greater vacation trauma than to be penned up with my brothers, and their wives, for an entire week, waiting for the fog to lift, or the rain to cease.

British Columbia is a beautiful place to be ... "when the weather's nice." Trying to select that one perfect week is like playing Russian roulette with an Eskimo. Using his spear.

So we defer the selection of a week in Vancouver "until we know more about the weather."

A trip to the nation's capital has been on our mind. It has been on our mind ever since Harry Truman ran the place.

"We really should see our nation's capital," she said then. Been saying it every year since. To make it worse, I've already made the D.C. tour ... one of my pre - marital flings. Everyone else I know has been, too.

Except the lady in our house. She's developing a D.C. complex.

"Can't go in mid - summer," I advise, thoughtfully eyeing the Vacation Schedule. "Too muggy." Snow is still on the Washington ground, through late March. Back again in late September.

"You make Washington sound like it has no weather at all," she complains. Wrong. Washington has loads of weather. All bad.

We decide on April ... "because that's when the cherry blossoms are in bloom." And Congress is in session. Jimmy and Rosalyn comfortably settled.

"The Cherry Blossom Festival is the first week in April," travel agent advises. "But you can't always be certain that the blossoms will be in bloom then." Then again, she adds, one good rain storm and ever blessed bloom is gone by the ides of April. The travel agent is really not very helpful.

Then there is this problem with Congress.

"There are two constituent weeks in April, and again in August.," we are informed. "Constituent weeks" are when the Congress persons all go home. Supposedly to rap with thee and me. We all know they really head for Puerto Rico, to be where the weather is nice, but the constituents ain't.

We start to tally the tab for one week in Washington ... in between Cherry Blossom Time and the return of the hard - working Congress. Here the travel agent is most efficient ...

"... figure $620 two round - trip tickets to Dulles ... hotel will run you $65 a day (you do want a bath, don't you?) ... meals $40 a day ... figuring you'll just snack at mid day ... then there's taxi fare, tips, taxes ...."

When we pass the $1500 plateau I pass out of the picture.

"What did you expect to spend for a full week in Washington?" the lady - who's - never - been demands. I advise her that my last visit to the nation's capital set me back something like $82.50, including the girlie show.

"Things were much cheaper in those days," she reminds me. "Besides, you were single then." Yes, and thinking about returning to that state once again, just to avoid bankruptcy.

So the week in Washington is deferred, for a while. And we're still waiting for the Vancouver ice to melt. Still trying to pay off last year's fling in dear olde England.

Berry's World

"Fellow cabinet members, we've guessed wrong again. President Carter's wearing a suit and tie today!"

Mike Zampa

Pro's pro

Last week Dick Flynn took over as the fourth head teaching professional there in approximately seven years. Most places, a pro sets up shop, pours some coffee and plans his retirement. At San Ramon they keep a schedule of departing Greyhoud buses tacked on the wall.

Flynn, hopefully, will stay put longer than the rest. He swings good credentials. Two stints as an assistant professional at Lake Chabot Golf Course in Oakland, plus several head pro jobs, including one in Grass Valley.

About a year ago I was scheduled to play Chabot in a foursome with Dick's teenage son. Like father, the younger Flynn is under six-feet. He is known as the Baby Gorilla, which hints at the distance of his shots. They callme Worm Molester.

On that afternoon Flynn's son suffered a vicious crack in the face from someone's careless practice swing. He went out and shot a 67.

I fortunately, contracted swine fever and was rushed to a secret clinic on Bay farm Island for the only known cure — massive doses of Miracle Whip administered intravenously.

Dick Flynn tutored his son from an early age. Told him to swing at a golf ball with all his strength, then refined the swing.

There's no doubt Flynn can teach. His son plays Chabot's par-5's with drivers and mid-irons. His scores wouldn't win many high school basketball games.

The son wants to become a golf professional. If he can find someone to smash him in the face often enough, it'll be a cinch.

For the father, it's not going to be that easy.

Working at San Ramon is certainly no gimmee. The course itself is challenging, and beautifully maintained. It suffers, however, from image problems. San Ramon National is privately owned, nestled among homes for high middle-income folks. It has a country club atmosphere and attempts to cater to neighborhood clientele. The course is open to the public, however. Past professionals failed at juggling the occassional weekend business with that from club members. Flynn will attempt to do better.

During the past seven revolving - door years, directorship of San Ramon has not been good. Golf professionals displayed a variety of shortcomings. Some were poor at community relations, others — to good at it. Few, if any, possessed marketing savvy in the pro shop. One was simply obnoxious.

Flynn should change all that.

He has the gray-hair, no-nonsense look of a businessman. He's worked for years at one of the Bay Area's most respected, and well-played courses, Chabot, and, he's a good teacher.

Only good management is required to improve the golfer's experience at San Ramon. With hundreds of new homes cropping up along the fairways, there's a whole new market to be reached.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband who is 32 found out about eight months ago that he has rheumatoid arthritis of the spine. An arthritis specialist taught him exercises to do twice daily and started him on a medication, Tandearil. He seemed to be doing just fine.

After six months he had to go to his home doctor for a blood count, which he did. He told him the blood count was normal but the doctor was uneasy about the Tandearil. He said it affected the blood count.

Another friend told him it affected the bone marrow. She said her mother took it for arthritis and you can touch her arm and blood rises to the surface. All this is upsetting. So my husband discontinued the medication for a while. During this time he was in quite a bit of pain and could hardly bend and get around so yesterday he started back on the medication.

Could you please shed some light on the side effects of this medication and any alternatives?

DEAR READER — I'll have to say again that patients should never stop their medicines without asking their doctor about it. The doctor may want to change the medicine rather than just stop it. When a patient does otherwise he sometimes runs the risk of seriously endangering himself.

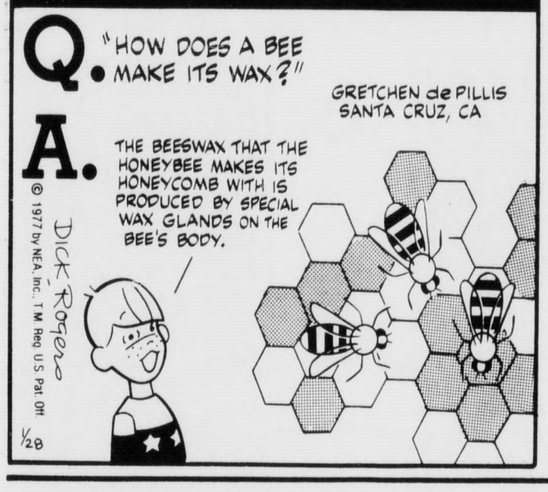
Rheumatoid arthritis of the spine, also called rheumatoid spondylitis, is particularly prone to affect young men, many younger than your husband. The disease is similar to ordinary rheumatoid arthritis but it differs in some important aspects. It usually progresses to cause fusion of the vertebrae, causing a "poker spine."

The main goal in treatment is to minimize the deformity of the spine and exercises are very helpful in this regard. Your husband should continue to follow the exercise routine designed for him.

The Tandearil (oxyphenbutazone) is to relieve pain and to decrease the inflammation involving the spine. It is not a real safe medicine and anyone taking it does need to have regular evaluations of the blood-forming process. A tendency to bleeding has occurred in some patients taking the medicine. It is very effective medicine if it doesn't cause any new problems. The situation here is an old one in medicine, the treatment is good for the disease but the medicine may not be good for the body.

Why don't you suggest that your husband talk it over with his doctor and if he has no objection try to control his pain with a different medicine since he is concerned about Tandearil.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "HOW DOES A BEE MAKE ITS WAX?"
GRETCHEN de PILLIS
SANTA CRUZ, CA
A. THE BEESWAX THAT THE HONEYBEE MAKES ITS HONEYCOMB WITH IS PRODUCED BY SPECIAL WAX GLANDS ON THE BEE'S BODY.
DICK ROGERS
© 1977 by NEA, Inc. T M Reg U.S. Pat Off
1/28

A beehive is full of the bustle and buzz of thousands of bees. Some are busily making honey, and some are making small, six-sided wax cells to store it in.

To make its beeswax, the worker honeybee eats large quantities of honey. The wax oozes from eight wax pockets on the bee's body and dries into tiny white flakes.

As the wax flakes dry, the bee picks them off its body and chews the wax until it is soft and pliable.

Using its jaws, the bee shapes and molds the wax on the part of the honeycomb that it is building.

The perfect hexagons of wax fit together like bathroom tiles. Each cell is tilted slightly upward to prevent the honey from dripping out.

Most bees providing honey for your table live in hives built by beekeepers. But wild honeybees build their honeycombs in hollow trees or other hideaways that afford shelter for the colony.

Opening lead — J ♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "Tournament bridge is certainly becoming a young man's game."

Jim: "Speak for yourself, Dad. Malcolm Brachman who captained this year's Reisinger winners has just celebrated his 50th brithday."

Oswald: "Right! However, the total age of the other five — Mike Passell, Bobby Goldman, Paul Soloway, Bill Eisenberg and Eddy Kantar is well under 200 so the team average is under 40 years. How about some hands from the event?"

Jim: "Here's a simple one. Malcolm sat South and opened with the artificial forcing two-club bid used by almost all American experts. Mike's two-spade response was positive and showed a decent spade suit."

Oswald: "Since the game was board-a-match, Malcolm took full charge and went into Blackwood. When Mike showed one ace he bid six notrump."

Jim: "This bid would be just as correct in IMPs as in board-a-match. With one ace missing and South holding ace-queen of clubs it was most important for South to be declarer."

Oswald: "Malcolm won the heart lead in dummy and led a low diamond on the theory that if East held the ace he might duck, whereupon Malcolm would collect what might be a most important extra trick. That didn't work, but it was unnecessary. The opposing North-South pair bid to six spades. Kantar led his singleton diamond and six spades went down one."

Ask the Jacobys

An Indiana reader wants to know if Blackwood actually invented the Blackwood convention.

The answer is a decided "Yes." Easley Blackwood invented it back in 1934 right in Indianapolis where Easley still lives.

Foreman KO's Agosto in 4th

PENSACOLA, Fla. George Foreman smashed Pedro Agosto to the floor five times and dropped him in the fourth round Saturday in Foreman's first fight of 1977, a year in which he hopes to march back to the world heavyweight championship.

The end to the nationally - televised fight came at 2:34 of the fourth round when Agosto went down for the third time in the round.

Davidson sisters spark PA

By Dave Weber

SANTA CLARA — Dana Davidson set yet another Pacific Assocation age - group record to help her PA all-star team to an overwelming dual - meet victory over British Columbia at Santa Clara University here yesterday.

Early in the 48 — event program, Davidson glided through four lengths of the indoor Leavey Activities Center pool in 53.14 seconds to beat the existing girls' 13-14 100-yard freestyle record by .36 seconds.

Dana also won the 100-yard butterfly in 58.82 and finished second in the 500-yard freestyle in 5:05.78 as Canadian Yvette Kovacs beat the field by more than five seconds.

The 13-year old Pleasanton resident also particpated in two winning relays, the 400-yard medley and the 400-yard freestyle. The first resulted in a time of 4:02.9, six hundreths better than the current national standard, but all-star teams are excluded from the record book.

Sister Vicky had a similar experience in the meet's first event as she teamed with Terri Baxter, Ann Ardell and Dayna Stevens to win the 400 M.R. in 4:18.6, .04 off the PA mark.

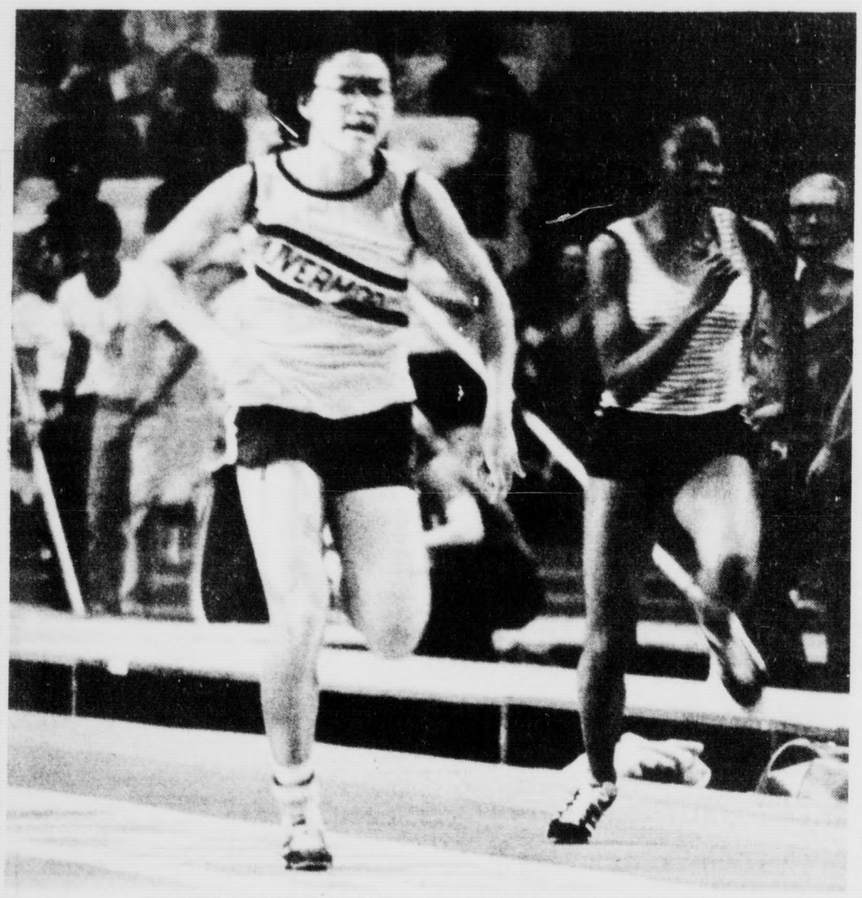
Though she was not party to any actual records, the younger Davidson was at least as impressive to watch as she copped two wide-open wins as the day progressed.

In the girls' 11-12 100-yard backstroke, Vicky was clocked in a lifetime best of 1:06.4 to win by more than two seconds over Gay Anne Pachalzuk of BC. Six races later, she came back with another lifetime best to win the 200-yard freestyle in 2:00.44, well over five seconds ahead of teammate Jennifer Porter.

The only other valley entrant was Alan Alarab of the San Ramon Sea Wolves, added to the team as an alternate just Friday night when David Sioninoff became ill.

Swimming in the boys' 11-12 grouping, coached by Bill Radley of the NorCal Aquatics — Alarab picked up a pair of third places finishes.

In the 100 fly, Alarab's time of 1:09.47 was good for third place the PA's Paul Marble, timed in 1:01.56.



Livermore's Paula Ng (left) rambles to a 6.9 second in the women's 60 - yard dash

Ng's not a sprinter but she sure can run

By Gary Brown

DALY CITY — Paula Ng doesn't plan to run the sprints in the upcoming track season and her prep rivals should be very pleased about that.

Ng established herself as one of the best women sprinters on any level Friday night when she ran a blazing 6.9 for a second place tie in the women's 60-yard dash at the Examiner Games indoor meet here.

Paula, a Livermore High School athlete, broke quickly from the blocks and had about a yard lead on the field at the 30-yard mark. However, eventual winner Andrea Lynch of Great Britain, an Olympic competitor, pulled ahead then and Rosalyn Bryant of the Los Angeles Mercurettes caught Ng at the wire to tie her for second.

"My starts have been pretty good lately," Ng admitted after the race. "Tonight it was really good but I sort of tightened up towards the end.

"I don't plan to run the sprints this spring," she went on. "I intend to concentrate on the long jump, hurdles, high jump, shot put and 440. I eventually want to get into the penathlon."

Ng also had a fine night in the long jump, taking third against a tough, experienced field. Paula leaped 18-1¼, below her best of 18-9 but good on the boards. Diane Kommer of the Maccabei Track Club of Los Angeles won with a leap of 19-6½. She has done over 20 feet.

"I got kind of psyched out jumping against that tough field," Ng said of the long jump competition. "Also, it was hard to concentrate because of the noise from the crowd. But it wasn't that much different from jumping outdoors."

Another Livermore athlete, Diana Stohr, a Cal-State Hayward student, who prepped at Granada High School last year, has less luck in the women's 800-meters. After a second false start Diana tripped over a fallen runner and suffered slight injuries to her jaw, leg and wrist.

Hampered by the injuries Stohr finished last in the field with a 2:24 clocking. She stayed in the middle of the pack until the last two laps. She has run a 2:15 800.

"It was rough out there," she admitted after the race. "Everybody was struggling. However, the boards were nice to run on."

Prehaps the most outstanding mark of the evening came in the pole vault where Mike Tully of UCLA cleared a meet record 17-8. In his final try at 18-0 he just nicked the bar off.

Long jumper Greg Canfield of California, former Dublin High star, and ex-Monte Vista high jumper Mark Wilson, now at San Jose State, did not compete in their scheduled events.

The 60-yard dash, which was supposed to be one of the evening's top events, was hampered by the absence of Steve Williams and Russian ace Valeriy Borzov, who was injured. Donald Quarrie of Jamaica, the Gold Medal winner in the 200-meters at Montreal, took the race in a slow 6.2, edging out San Jose State's Mike Kirtman, who had the same time.

Kirtman was out first but Quarrie, not the fastest starter around, came on strong at the 50-yard mark to nip the former San Francisco prep star.

Dons edge Gaels

Amador Valley High School stayed in the thick of the East Bay Athletic League soccer race with an exciting 3-2 win over visiting Dublin Friday afternoon.

The Dons are now 6-2-1 in EBAL play and Dublin is 5-5.

Amador took a quick lead when Kevin Crow headed one in from three yards two minutes into the game. The Dons added a second goal three minutes into the second half when Joe Correia took a feed from Pat Cohan and planted one from the side four yards out.

Dublin came back with a eight-yarder by John Downing on an assist from Ed Crosbie four minutes later.

The matches' final scores were a six - yarder by Amador's Greg Oxsen and a seven - yarder by Hans Schlicker of Dublin with 23 minutes gone.

Dublin threatened several more times but the stiff AV defense held them off.

In other EBAL action Foothill edged California, 2-1, Livermore pounded San Ramon, 8-1 and Granada topped Monte Vista 2-1.

California's Roger Hurlow scored one of the fastest goals in EBAL history Friday, but the Falcons checked them quick with two first half goals that stood up for the win over the hustling Grizzlies in Pleasanton.

Hurlow took a pass from Bruce Morgan right from the opening face-off and slapped a less - than - spectacular rolling shot past Foothill goalie Dave Konecny from 15 yards out on the left side for a 1-0 Cal lead just ten seconds into the game.

"I think that happened to us against Granada and Livermore last year," said

Mats in finals

ESCALON — Brett Nadeau pinned all three of his opponents to reach the finals of the Escalon Invitational Wrestling Tournament here last night.

The Granada High School wrestler made the finals along with teammate Scott Rychnovsky, who won three tough decisions by close margins.

Granada, the only East Bay Athletic League team entered in the tourney, sent no other wrestlers to the finals, as some top - rated matmen fell to defeat in early upsets.

Roy Davis, (114 pounds), coming into the match unbeaten in his weight group pinned his first two opponents before falling to Jeff Stougamore of Tokay, 10-3 in the quarter-finals.

Rick Quiroz (97) and Jessie Lopez (122) both won first - round matches. Quiroz beat Modesto's Mike Timellio, while Lopez lost to Davis' John Beam. Quiroz lost his second round match to John Silvera of Downey of Modesto.

AV defense awesome

Maybe San Ramon's Russ Critchfield took one look at the zillion-and-one championship banners surrounding the Amador Valley High basketball gym and sensed the handwriting was on the wall.

Critchfied, embarking on his first-ever trip to Pleasanton as coach of the Wolves to meet the Dons, went through a living nightmare Friday as the Dons ripped and roared their way to a 71-29 win to remain unbeaten in five East Bay Athletic League starts. The Wolves are now 3-2.

"That was the most intensive defensive half this team has ever played, and I'm going out on a limb to say that," beamed AV mentor Skip Mohatt.

Pokes roll

Tim Jenkins solidified a "Bombs Away" Livermore offense Friday evening, pumping in 28 points to lead the 'Pokes past Foothill, 88-68, in action on the winners' court.

Mats romp

Joey Wujek fired in 19 points to spark Granada High past California 80-62 Friday night in the losers' gym.

The Matadors sped to a 37-23 halftime lead on the way to raising their EBAL record to 4-1. California is now 0-5.

California tired to stop the Mats with a man-to-man defense but the Mats just passed inside to the 6-7 Wujek and he responded with 12 of his points in the first half.

Gaels fall

DANVILLE — Monte Vista High's twosome of Kevin Jones and Ken Krey each hit for 21 points in leading the Mustangs past visiting Dublin 76-64 here Friday night.

The contest was close for most of the first half but the winners pulled together to take a 39-29 halftime lead.

Getting it ready

Workmen at Granada Bowl are putting the finishing touches on the bowling alley's expansion project. They're currently installing the AMF machines and the lanes are being resurfaced. Spring leagues on the new expanded lanes are being organized with the new leagues to start in February.

Falcons keep first

Falcon coach Keith Sweet, whose 1-12-1 1975-76 team suddenly finds itself safely in first place this year with an 8-2 ledger with just four games remaining, "but certainly not that quick."

"That's the same kind of play we've been doing all year," Sweet continued, "except it's never worked for us."

Luck switched over to Sweet's side four minutes later when Cal goalie Mike Daugherty — commended by everyone as playing a super game — unknowingly kicked a ball out of the goal that hit Falcon front-liner Dave Laudenbach. The ball bounced right off of Laudenbach and into the goal with Daugherty out of position.

At the 21-minute mark, Laudenbach pocketed a "real" goal when he accepted a tiny pass from Bob Byrd in the far right corner and lofted the ball high in the air toward the nets. Daugherty followed the ball and jumped to catch it, but it was too deep into the nets and he never got a hand on the ball. Laudenbach's masterfully-placed kick made it 2-1 Foothill, standing up for the rest of the game.

"We were ready to play this one," remarked Sweet, who also commented on the excellent play of Jeff Ghidossi and Mike Cerdan. "Now we've got to hit the Livermore game." The Falcons, who lost to Livermore the first time around, must face the 'Pokes, Amador, Monte Vista and Granada in their final four tilts, quite a haul for the championship - incensed Falcons.

Shannon Estil scored the winning goal for Granada on an indirect penalty kick with two minutes to play.

The win kept the Mats in EBAL title contention with a 6-2-1 mark. MV is 3-7.

Livermore remained in second with its win over SR. Mike Miller led the Cowboys with two goals and an assist. The Pokes led 3-0 at half and coasted in from there.

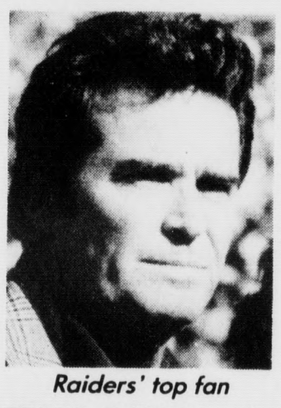
James Garner

Raiders' Lucky star



Raiders' top fan

PEBBLE BEACH — James-Garner is playing in the Bing Crosby National ProAm golf tournament by invitation.

It took a little gate-crashing for the popular actor to join his beloved Oakland Raiders on the sidelines for the National Football League's Super Bowl game two weeks ago.

"The Raiders had nothing to do with my being there. I want to stress that," Garner said before teeing off Thursday with his pro parter, Bob Goalby, in the first round of the Crosby.

"I understand the NFL told the Raiders I shouldn't be on the field, and they were probably right," said Garner. "(Raider managing general partner) Al Davis told me he'd expressed a desire that I be allowed to be there but that he couldn't give me a sidelines pass, just a ticket to the game.

"I think they wanted me on the sidelines because I'd been with them through most of the season and maybe they considered it a good-luck thing."

At the kickoff, with 101,000 fans in the Rose Bowl, Garner was kneeling in his customary spot to the right of the Raiders' bench, wearing a black Raiders' jacket.

"I'll never tell who gave me the sideline pass," Garner said. "But I do happen to know some people who work at the Rose Bowl."

A few minutes into the game, he added, "An NFL official spotted me and said, 'So you made it, heh, Garner? You'd better keep a low profile.' I told him 'no problem.'"

"I met the Raiders through my knees," he explained early this week, while holding ice packs to his right knee which has been operated on several times.

"My doctor in Los Angeles, Bob Rosenfeld, is also the Raiders' team surgeon. He invited me along to a game in Oakland and they let me stay on the sidelines for the game." Garner said.

"If I sit in the stands, I'm asked for autographs a lot and often don't get to watch a lot of a game. On the sidelines, I'm not bothered, and if someone does ask me for an autograph I tell them I'm sorry but that I'm not there for that," added the star of television's "Rockford Files."

George Blanda, another amateur playing in the Crosby, spent several Sunday afternoons in the Oakland Coliseum alongside Garner.

"I remember talking to him during one game, telling Jimmy what I'd do if I were in there at quarterback," said Blanda, finally retired at age 49. "Then they took Daryle Lamonica out and put me in. Jim was telling Art Shell what plays I was going to run and Art said, 'Gee, you know a lot about football, don't you.'"

Blanda also came close to ending Garner's sidelines privileges once, though.

"We were kneeling together and George yelled something that an official didn't like. He turned around and said, 'Shut up, Garner, or I'll have you kicked out.' I think they're all my friends now, though," Garner said.

Watson holds Crosby lead

Associated Press

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — The largest gallery golf has ever seen, a cheering, enthusiastic, swarming mob, failed to get former President Gerald Ford past the cut while Tom Watson — playing in the relative solitude of another course — swept into the lead Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

The former President, with Arnold Palmer as his pro partner, chipped in for a natural birdie on the 14th hole — with his 18 handicap a net eagle for the team — and said "it made my day."

He and Palmer had a better ball score of 208, only seven under par and not even close to the score required to qualify for the final round Sunday.

Ford, however, played extremely well on the sun-swept back nine at the Pebble Beach Golf Links and played a fivehole stretch starting at the 12th in level par. In all, he had four natural pars and the birdie. Mr. Ford helped Palmer eight shots for the day and they had a team score of 66 for the round.

Under the format for this unique event, amateurs are not required to putt out on every hole. Mr. Ford picked up several times and an exact score was not available. Palmer shot a 74 and failed to qualify for the pro portion of the tournament with a 219 total.

Watson, a former British Open champion, played his third round at the par 71 Shore course at Monterey Peninsula Country Club — away from the mob — and managed a 67 and a 202 total, 13 under par for one round on each of the three peninsula courses.

Tony Jacklin, a former British and American Open champion mired in a deep slump for four years, had a solid 68 at tough Cypress Point and was just one shot out of the lead at 203.

Lee Elder, who gained international attention as the first black to play in the Masters, whot 69 at the Shore course and was third at 204. Mexican Victor Regalado, who held the second round lead, went to a 71 at Cypress Point and was one more behind at 205.

No crowds to battle for space

Area parks offer much for hardy souls

While the rest of the world huddles indoors by the fire, there are a few hardy souls clambering around the local parklands, catching fish and climbing trees and camping under the stars.

And a lot of not - so - hardy souls, too, fast discovering that it's not as cold as it looks out there — sweatshirt weather on a sunny afternoon. Sprawling campgrounds are dotted with a handful of campers and the occasional tent. Overnight rates are down to $2.50 per night at Del Valle, $1.50 at Anthony Chabot with modern facilities and hot showers at both.

That feeling of getting away from it all is even greater with winter camping in quiet, almost deserted surroundings.

Although the calendar says it's winter, naturalists are still leading people around to look at Indian remains (Coyote Hills, Fremont) and nature trails by horseback (Tilden, Berkeley).

The fish are biting at recently stocked Del Valle Lake just south of Livermore ($1 admission for day use) and at Shadow Cliffs in Pleasanton (free admission in winter) although our advice to fisherpersons is, bundle up — it's windy by the water. And watch out for Shadow Cliff's heedless mudhens, who will plunge underwater to gulp down your fish bait.

Del Valle Lake is 40 feet lower than its 703 foot above sea level summer maximum. The scenic lake is framed with a pitted, rocky border that resembles the surface of the moon. But it's all perfectly normal, East Bay Regional Park experts assure us.

It's a flood control measure (by agreement with the state, Del Valle Lake is 51 per cent for recreation, 49 per cent for flood control).

Drawing down the lake also allows EBRPD staff and volunteers from local fishermen's clubs to dig out black bass spawning holes and to fashion fish habitats which will be deep under water in a few months.

No matter what the season, the parking lot behind the Del Valle concession stand is always lined with cars and campers. Not so much in evidence are the Scout troops braving it out in pup tents (a salute to Livermore troop 942, spending this weekend at Tilden Park, and Pleasanton troop 911 camping in Chabot.)

There's also golf (Tilden and Chabot); archery (Briones, Chabot, Tilden, Redwood); horseback (Las Trampas, Chabot, Tilden); bicycling (anywhere) and even weddings in the great outdoors.

For details, call EBRPD headquarters in Oakland (531 - 9300), or local parks listed individually in the phone book.

Murray mulls hot lunch plan

The Murray School District is thinking of contracting with the Amador - Pleasanton school districts for a hot lunch program, that could possibly start in three schools on a trial basis in March or April.

Anna Stutler, of the Murray business office, told members of the district's Parent/Administrative Council earlier this week that a hot lunch program might be started initially at Dublin, Fallon, Lydiksen or Donlon.

The Pleasanton school district would be responsible for food preparation, according to Mrs. Stutler.

Les Schmidt, curriculum coordinator, presented a status report on the Early Childhood Education program. The advisory committee for ECE has recommended that Donlon School enter the program next year if state funds are provided.

Schmidt adds that many positive comments were expressed about the 1 to 10 teacher-pupil ratio, individualization, diagnoses and prescription and parent in-put and participation.

Schmidt also discussed implementation of Title IX, which provides for equal educational opportunities.

Mrs. Frank Phillips announced that a group called the Parents Educational Rights and Responsibility Organization is being formed. Interested persons are asked to call her at 829-1679. The group will study and discuss educational programs and issues.

The Murray district has instituted the use of a recorded message phone as a means of informing the public about district-wide information. Messages will be updated each week. The number to call is 828-7671.

Classic collection of homes

Diablo West nestled in Danville hills

Diable West is showcasing a classic collection of traditional single family homes in the rolling foothills of Danville, off Camino Tassajara, according to to John Cadenasso, community sales manager for Croker Homes, Inc., the builders.

"The Grand Opening of our third and final phase is providing selection of homesites, floor plans, exterior stylings, luxury features and custom design options," Cadenasso said. Prices for the spacious three, four, five bedroom homes with up to three full baths, available in five distinctive models, range from $85,450 to $102,000. The striking floor plans stretch from 1974 to 2720 square feet of functional living space.

Diable West offers buyers a complete community now, with complete recreational facilities, important conveniences and a charming country lifestyle and accessable city excitement.

Exterior design is varied to maximize appeal and for the overall community attractiveness. Brick, natural stone and roughsawn wood siding blend with roofs of cedar shake or mission tile. Space is never wasted, and even the little details have a real purpose. Rest and relaxation sections of the homes are set comfortably apart from the entertainment and activity areas. Some added features are the impressive tiled entry foyers in varied styles, wet bars, custom designed wood - burning fireplaces with gas log lighters, breakfast nooks, formal dining rooms and kitchens designed to a gourmets enjoyment. There is also a custom design program that allows the buyer to choose colors, exterior design and homesite.

The outstanding leisure facilities mentioned include night lighted tennis courts, large heated swimming pool, clubhouse with fireside lounge and kitchen facilities for parties and community activities. An excellent financing program is available at Diablo West in Danville. There's virtually no maximum loan ceiling. Value appreciation has actually been pegged from 17% to 19% a year her. Crocker Homes Inc., is a Foremost - McKesson company.

UC Brokers in Livermore

News of United California Brokers acquisition of Pearson Realty at 1989 First St. Livermore, became official at the recent holiday dinner ball for all UCB agents and brokers. According to Herb Singleton, manager broker of the Livermore office, the gala event, held at the Newell House Restaurant in Walnut Creek, was attended by 55 agents, including several Pearson employees.

James Pearson, who opened the brokerage in 1962 after serving as a real estate agent in the Livermore area for six years, will stay with the firm.

Looking back on his twenty one years in business, Pearson says, "Everyone in the Valley has watched the phenomenal growth in population. But one of the most interesting things to me has been the change in emphasis in real estate. In the early sixties we dealt mainly in land sales, later in rental and investment properties, and now primarily in single family homes. It has been a rewarding twenty one years, but the time is near to make a change and we'll be moving back to the family home in the Ozarks when I retire."

Herb Singleton and the staff of United California Brokers are extremely pleased and proud of their new association with Pearson Realty. Singleton states," First of all, they are a wonderful bunch to work with; eight Pearson agents will be staying with us, and we feel that's a tremendous plus." Leon Gartung, who is broker - partner with Singleton and who heads the Danville office of UCB, is also very enthusiastic about the Pearson Realty acquisition." Besides the Livermore and Danville locations, United California Brokers has offices in Dublin and Walnut Creek.

New name— same service

John F. Shea, chairman of the board of the J.F. Shea Corp., and William Okell, president, have announced that Century Community Developers will now be known as Shea Homes.

"This proud new name in homebuilding takes over for a proud old name in the American construction industry," Shea said. "Century Community Developers was a good name and, under it's banner, we've built residential communities that are home to thousands of families in California and Nevada.

"We have felt, however, that CCD is hardly a personal name, while homebuilding is a most personal enterprise," he explained. "Now we're using our own name."

One of the nation's leading homebuilders, the newly-named company was originally formed in 1968. In addition to its Los Angeles County headquarters, Shea Homes maintaines divisions in Northern California.

"We're introducing a new community of large, luxury homes in San Ramon, called Paseo San Ramon, which has already attracted enthusiastic homebuyer interest", Three and five bedroom model homes are under construction on Burning Tree Court, near Alcosta Blvd., adjacent to the San Ramon Golf Course. Prices are expected to start at approximately $78,000.

Joe has been a resident of the Valley since 1967, and has been in Real Estate sales for the past two years and specializes in residential sales. Joe, who enjoys playing slow-pitch softball, lives in Valley Trails with his wife Joan and their 9 year old daughter Marti.

Criminal Cases Become TV Drama

"Crimes of Passion," a series inspired by actual case histories taken from the files of the French criminal courts, where crimes of passion are still a special category of the law, premieres on Channel 2 Sunday night at 9 p.m.

The first telecast features the story of a peasant farmer, who on the threshold of political success, kills the woman who changed his life.

Pipeline proposals explored

An export pipeline to carry treated wastewater from the Valley to any of three dumping points, with partial future reclamation for spray irrigation, is now considered the likely solution to the present sewage disposal crisis.

CH2M Hill engineers of San Francisco, contracted to conduct design work on disposal alternatives, are studying the feasibility of plans to export effluent to outfalls in Suisun Bay and north and south San Francisco Bay.

Reclamation of from 20-40 per cent of the wastewater is possible if enough Valley farmland growing crops for animal consumption only can be found. A preliminary study shows that only a relatively small portion of land in the middle of the Livermore - Amador Valley, currently used primarily for growing human consumable crops, would be suitable for spray irrigation.

Reclamation studies can now be funded with state grant money, an option not available to local officials before Jan. 5.

Robert Philcox, president of the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA), and Bob Harding, project director, both expressed similar opinions Friday that an export pipeline would probably be constructed for any type of sewage disposal project. Reclamation of the wastewater, limited by health standards which technology cannot now meet, could be instituted at a later date with such a system.

LAVWMA met Thursday night and directed engineers to return in two weeks with an overall report detailing the scope, costs and completion date of designing disposal alternatives. Plans under study include export pipelines to an outfall north of the Dumbarton Bridge, another six miles from the San Leandro Marina, and a third to connect up with Central Sanitary District's dumping spot in Suisun Bay.

Design work on interceptors, surge ponds and other elements common to all three export plans will begin in the first week in February. This will give engineers a jump on whatever plan is finally selected.

LAVWA officials are considering offering Valley voters the chance to once again vote on a wastewater disposal plan, such as the unsuccessful Measure U on last November's ballot.

The last election that could be held before grant funding is no longer assured would be May 31.

Super-sewer plan okayed

A permit to approve construction of the $175 million super-sewer, which would carry the Valley's effluent to San Francisco Bay under one alternative proposal, was granted Thursday on the condition engineers seriously study reclamation of the wastewater.

The Bay Conservation and Development Commission (BCDC) voted to approve a staff recommendation endorsing the project, which would carry treated wastewater from Hayward, San Leandro, Union City and Castro Valley to an outfall six miles offshore from the San Leandro Marina.

The reclamation condition, never before imposed on a project, requires approval from the State Water Resources Control Board on a reuse plan by 1985. Federal law prohibits any discharge of water - polluting wastewater after that date.

Earlier this month, the SWRCB announced that $3.5 million had been committed to match $400,000 in local funding to build the first segment, a two-mile force main between Hayward and Castro Valley.

Valley officials have until March 31 to advise project engineers whether they will join into the super-sewer project. After that date, planning and design will begin on the portion to carry wastewater past the Valley's tie-in point.

A WINNER AGAIN!
It was a close race right to the end as 3 salespeople from Tri Valley Brokers' Livermore office exceeded $200,000 volume during the month of December, but Rita Simpson was the winner of the Salesperson of the Month with a volume of $207,500. Not bad for one of the slowest months out of the year. This puts Rita well over the $1,000,000 mark for the year. Welcome to the Million Dollar Club, Rita!
